Microscopic algae trapped in a monolithic silica glass column, alternating between darkness and light conditions, developed colour oscillations. The length scale of oscillations depended on the light intensity in this column, which was found to be inversely proportional to the light intensity. Algae trapped in a free solution of the dye 4-(dicyanomethylene)-2-methyl-6-(4-dimethylaminostyryl)-4H-pyran, oscillated also in a similar fashion when alternated between darkness and light conditions. This dye has a similar absorption spectrum as that of the silica glasses, and has an emission spectrum that overlaps well with the absorption spectrum of the other dye used in this study, which is suggestive of wavelength specificity of colour oscillation. The results demonstrate that colour oscillations are not necessarily due to the time dependence of light intensity.Tumor necrosis factor- $\alpha$  inhibits the nuclear factor- $\kappa$ B pathway via a protein kinase C-dependent mechanism. This study examined the role of tumor necrosis factor- $\alpha$  (TNF- $\alpha$ ) on the nuclear factor- $\kappa$ B (NF- $\kappa$ B) pathway. By using NF- $\kappa$ B luciferase reporter, TNF- $\alpha$  inhibited the NF- $\kappa$ B activation and the NF- $\kappa$ B transcriptional activity. The inhibitory effect of TNF- $\alpha$  on NF- $\kappa$ B activity was mediated by the internalization of transduced TNF- $\alpha$  receptor and the inhibition of the activation of I $\kappa$ B kinase. TNF- $\alpha$  inhibited the phosphorylation of p65, the degradation of I $\kappa$ B- $\alpha$ , and the phosphorylation and the degradation of I $\kappa$ B- $\alpha$ .
